“As someone who loves history and architecture, this is one of my favorite events. Adults enjoy it just as much as kids. I’ve seen several generations of families, as well as people who’ve just met, collaborate on a building. They can get pretty elaborate. Building the Hampton Coliseum, Hampton Roads Convention Center, Air & Space Center or Hampton Carousel requires some ingenuity. The results are amazing,” says Hampton History Museum executive director Luci Cochran.

In addition fashioning familiar landmarks from cardboard, thousands of LEGOs will be on hand to create buildings and other structures in a dedicated area.

The Hampton Roads Convention Center is located at 1610 Coliseum Drive, Hampton, VA 23666. For more information call 757-727-1102 or visit www.HamptonHistoryMuseum.org.
